

Office cooking: An overlooked workplace fire risk

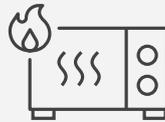

Warming up coffee, toasting a bagel or heating up a quick lunch happens all the time during the workday. The microwave, toaster oven or coffee maker in your office breakroom are convenient and easy to use, but if left unattended, they can cause small fires that have a big impact on your team's safety.

NEARLY 1 IN 3

The number of non-residential building fires caused by cooking

#1 CAUSE

Cooking is the leading cause of non-residential fires

2-7 P.M.

Non-residential building fires most frequently occur during these hours

U.S. Fire Administration

KNOW THE RISKS: BE PREPARED

58%

OVER HALF OF NON-CONFINED,
NON-RESIDENTIAL BUILDING FIRES
SPREAD BEYOND THE ROOM OF ORIGIN

SCAN TO LEARN MORE

Learn how to help prevent office cooking fires
by visiting cintas.com/cookingfire